

Homelessness: A Problem in Your Backyard

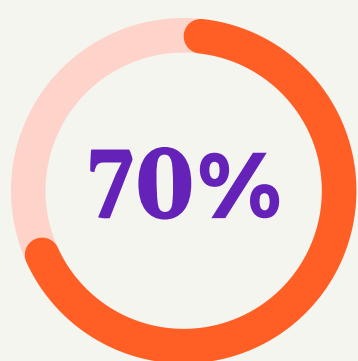

Of the homeless population are in fact children. More kids become victims of unhappy families or bad household circumstances. Thankfully, they are usually placed in homeless shelters than being left on the street.

Homelessness is a major problem that affects thousands of people every day. As the current generation, we are finally understanding different ways to help this population. More plans are starting to work and we are able to help people who suffer from this terrible problem.

"People can be so apathetic. They continue to ignore the real people trapped in poverty and homelessness. It's almost maddening."
—Daphne Zuniga

Statistics of Homelessness

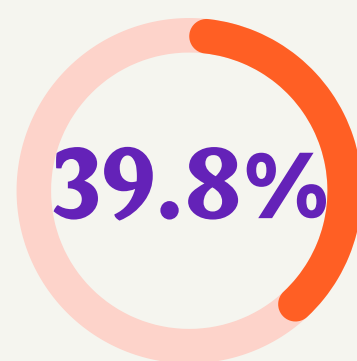

Age

24-50 are a main part of the homeless population

Gender

Is the percentage of how many males are without a home

Race

Is the percentage of how many African-Americans are without a home

We all believe it's time for these numbers to decrease. It's our time to stand up for change instead of just talking about it. A major factor is the limited space for creating new shelters. If we come together, we can find a great solution to fix something that has been a problem for decades.

Let's give a helping hand to those in need. It's time for homelessness to end once and for all.
